HAWAII RUBBER IN NEW YORK

Organizer of Exhibition Blames U. S. Government for the Neglect of Industry

A. Staine Manders, mentioned as organizer of all of the international rubber exhibitions, is quoted in the New York Times of September 26 as praising the Philippine and Hawaiian exhibits as showing great development since the last international exposition in London in 1911, and particularly as compared with the exhibitions at the London show in 1908. But he said that the United States Government is to blame for conditions which prevent a more rapid development of the rubber industry in the American possessions.

"Your American provinces need encouragement," he said, "and the kind of encouragement they need must be given by the Government itself, it is of such a nature that private individuals cannot expect to furnish it. Education is what is needed most of all to enlarge the rubber industry in these provinces. These lands need agricultural colleges to train natives how to grow rubber trees and how to make them yield most. Here you have a condition which, by way of analogy, might be described thus: You have a great, big school and thousands of willing pupils waiting for the doors to open. But there are no teachers, and thus the school is of no practical value. You have the land, the labor, and, what is most important, the climate, but you can't produce the quality and quantity of rubber that is produced in the British protectorates, where the Government seeks to do everything in its power to encourage the rubber industry."

Hawaiian Wild Rubber.
"At the 1908 show in London there wasn't a sign of evidence that the Philippines were in existence, so far as the rubber industry was concerned. Within the next three years there was some development, but not an appreciable amount. This last year, I am glad to notice, has produced a great change, and we are able for the first time to show what opportunities are lying dormant in the Philippines and in Hawaii."

Mr. Manders took a Times reporter to the exhibit booths of these countries and picked up various samples of the crude rubber on view there and then held them alongside some of the purer specimens on exhibition by the rubber growers of the more advanced British territories.

"Your American rubber," he said, "may test to be just as good as this English rubber, but what is the sense in shipping anything but the purest rubber when you have to pay freight by weight? They need more machinery and a knowledge of the latest purifying processes to develop the trade as it should be developed. For instance, an entirely new kind of rubber has just been found in Hawaii, according to reports received. If the Government were to pay for the scientific research and exploitation necessary to bring this new kind of rubber into the rubber market it would only be doing what other countries have done long ago."

Rubber Demand Unlimited.
When asked whether the intensive encouragement of the rubber industry might not tend to cheapen rubber and thus cut the profits of investors, Mr. Manders said that the growers were united in favoring an extension of the rubber industry, even though it be competitive.

"The more rubber that can be produced the better it will be for the world at large," he said. "Thousands of things are now being made of rubber, but there is still room for application in thousands of other lines. It would be impossible to produce as much rubber as is needed. The business is tremendously growing in dimensions, and all the scientific help that might be given would only tend to add to the business."

Synthetic Rubber Bugaboos.
"How about synthetic rubber?" asked the reporter, seeing no sample of artificially prepared rubber among any of the exhibits.

"I am glad you brought that up," said Mr. Manders. "There is a popular conception that the natural rubber producers are shaking in their boots because of the prospects of floating synthetic rubber. I wish they could make artificial rubber at a profit. It would at least be pure rubber, and pure rubber, mixed with natural rubber, would be a boon to civilization. We made some rubber at our last exhibition in London. In seventy-two hours we made three-quarters of a pound, and it cost us $100. The same amount could have been grown for 25 cents. So there really isn't much to be feared, but, remember, the growers will welcome synthetic rubber when it does appear."

The Times article states that samples of rubber from the Philippines and Hawaii were not included in the competition for prizes offered by the British chamber of commerce. For this competition there had been received from other countries 133 samples, consisting of 112-pound packages of raw rubber. "That tells the story," was the comment of Mr. Manders on the absence of samples from Hawaii and the Philippines.

HAWAII NOTES

HILO, October 14.—Incendiarism may have been the cause of a fire early Sunday morning which destroyed the old Kanahua house about a mile above Naalehu, on the Kailiaki road. The occupants of the house, Hoona Hapai and wife, had locked up the house and had gone to the beach for a week. The general opinion is that the house was entered and looted and then set on fire to cover up the crime. The fire was quite a hardship upon the family, as all their household goods and clothes were destroyed.

F. Barrin, travelling salesman for H. Hackfeld & Co., met with an accident last week that might have resulted seriously had he not had the good judgment to leave the rig before it occurred. He was on his way to Honoahu in a rig driven by John Kalehu, and had with him the usually heavy load of trunks that he carries. As they approached the hill above the railroad track, he met Bob Pestano coming up with the Kau auto-stage. The leaders of the team became frightened and although Pestano pulled over to one side of the road and stopped, the driver was afraid to pass on account of the narrowness of the road. The team shied toward the right and the wheels went over on that side of the bank, which was not very high, but owing to the top-heaviness of the rig, it capsized. The only damage sustained was a broken pole, and the Volcano Stables soon had another rig on the scene.

The Naalehu team's new uniforms are certainly a "Jonah." The first time they had them on they were beaten unmercifully by the Kilauea team. At their next meeting at Paiala on Sunday last they were beaten by a score of 14 to 3. Judge White, their manager, has come to the conclusion that his team plays ball better in dungarees than in Reach uniforms.

Headed by L. L. McCandless and D. E. Metzger, a bunch of Democratic and Home Rule candidates held a meeting at Waiohinu last Tuesday evening. Mr. Metzger made a favorable impression, judging from the talk on the streets the next day and it is safe to say that he will poll a large number of votes in this precinct.

PROF. SHIGA TO BOOST HAWAII

Is Distributing Literature in Japan—Manila Displays Interest

The popularity of the Hawaiian Islands as a winter resort is certainly growing, according to the number of letters that are received by Secretary Wood, of the Promotion Committee, on nearly every boat that touches this port, both from the mainland and from the Orient, asking for information about Hawaii and requesting literature of the Islands. The direct results of Walter G. Smith's lecture tour are being brought out by the number of people in the Northwest who have written for information and literature or who have stated definitely that they or some of their friends would visit the Islands during the coming winter.

In a recent letter to Secretary Wood, the manager of the Imperial Hotel of Tokyo states that Professor S. Shiga, who recently made a lecture tour in California and spent some time in Honolulu, is to be the host at a large reception and meeting at the hotel at which there will be present five or six hundred leading business men and government officials of Tokyo and other cities, and also many others interested in the friendly relations between Japan and the United States. It is Professor Shiga's idea to distribute literature from Hawaii among those present and, through the manager of the hotel, he requests Secretary Wood to send him six hundred copies of the booklet. At the meeting Professor Shiga also intends to present various products at the hands of the Japanese in Hawaii, in order to give those present a more complete knowledge with regard to Hawaii and especially an idea of what the local promotion committee is doing. When the professor returned to Japan he took with him a small amount of literature, but he is in need of more to make the distribution at the meeting complete.

Another letter of interest by Secretary Wood is that from the chairman of the Manila Merchants' Association, which states that the association is having a number of kiosks made for the advertising of Manila and the Philippine Islands. One of these, composed of various Philippine woods and containing views of the Islands, will be sent to the local promotion committee within a month.

HAWAII LECTURER REPORTS LARGE CROWDS

Writing from Seattle under date of October 3, Walter G. Smith, who is making a lecture tour in the States, says that one of the most enthusiastic crowds that he has ever spoken to during his tour was a group of a thousand or more high school students in that city. In his letter he says that the principal of the school had limited him to one hour, but that he let him go on for nearly two hours. On October 4 and 5 he spoke at the commercial clubs. The promotion committee has received letters from Charles Stewart, a prominent real estate dealer of Los Angeles, stating that he and his family will visit the Islands this winter, and Agent Fleming of the Great Northern Railroad at Spokane writes that after reading the committee's literature his wife and a friend will make a trip to the Islands shortly.

Good results are expected from the use of the Victor Animatograph Stereoscope which the committee has placed aboard the steamship Sierra. The machine is simple and has a large number of discs of Hawaiian scenes.

The committee's efforts to place an advertising kiosk in the office of the Oceanic Steamship company in San Francisco has met with no encouragement. However, Mr. Wood expects to place one in the office of the Santa Fe railroad on the same plan as the one in the new Southern Pacific office. The Hitchcock painting of Kilauea in the Pacific Railroad company's Market street window is one of the attractions of the Broadway of San Francisco.

ADVERTISE FOR BIDS ON HAWAII WATER SYSTEM

HILO, October 15.—Appropriations aggregating $8000 are to be spent in waterworks extensions on the Big Island, bids for which are now being advertised and will be opened November 11. Of the total amount $5000 is to be used in Waiohinu water works system which is to be extended to Kamao and Kilauea, the remainder going to the extension of the Kamao water system.

A. M. Cabrinha, though quoted as saying he would enter the lists as independent candidate for supervisor for Hilo if John Kealoha did likewise, has not announced his candidacy as yet, despite the fact that Kealoha has entered the race.

Luke LeBlond left Saturday on the Enterprise for the Coast. His father, Attorney LeBlond, died last week.

During a visit to Hilo last week Mrs. Joe Teves, wife of the ball player and employee at the Olua Plantation store, died very suddenly.

Dr. L. V. Williams, a professor of comparative anatomy at Harvard, was crushed to death in an elevator he was operating.
